STREET CAR RUNS OVER SAMUEL FITTRO CUTTING HIS LEG OFF

STRUCK STANDING ON TRACK

Samuel Fittro, of Wilsonburg, lost his left leg at two o'clock Wednesday afternoon at Wilsonburg, by being struck by a street car.

Mr. Fittro was standing on the track in front of Strother's store, when a car approached him from the rear. He appears not to have heard the car coming, and it struck him before he could get off the track. His left foot was virtually cut off just above the ankle and had to be amputated close to the knee. Dr. M. J. Bartlett was summoned. He amputated the member and then Mr. Fittro was brought to the Kessler hospital.

The car was going west and Mr. Fittro was standing facing the west. The street car men claim the motor-man rang his bell to warn him but was too close upon him to stop the car in time to prevent it from striking him.

The car was No. 10 and a new motorman named Mills was running it. W. A. Body was conductor on the car.

Besides having his leg cut off Mr. Fittro was badly bruised up and the other leg was injured some.

DR. COPLIN IS HIGHLY HONORED

Dr. W. M. Late Coplin, a native of this county, but for several years past a resident of Philadelphia, has been appointed health director for the City of Philadelphia. The position is one of great responsibility and carries with it a salary of $10,000 a year. Those here who know him are proud of this honor conferred upon him as well as the fact that he is to command such a handsome salary.

Mayor Weaver's promise that he would name a "big man" for Director of Health has been kept in the case of Doctor Coplin, who has worldwide recognition in the field of applied sanitation and as a writer in all aspects of the work. That no better man could have been selected was the spirit of the opinion expressed by physicians, surgeons, chemists, scientists and college instructors throughout Philadelphia.

Doctor Coplin entered upon his duties immediately after taking the oath. He was formally introduced to Directors Potter, Acker and Shoyer, his fellow members of the Mayor's cabinet, and then to the heads of the large working force of the department. Harry A. Mackey, who has been serving as Assistant Director since the resignation of Doctor Martin, will retain that position for the few days necessary to permit his aiding Doctor Coplin in mastering the details of the department, and will then formally resign.

Doctor Coplin is 41 years old, and, save for a year in 1895-96, has lived in Philadelphia for twenty-one years. His year of absence was devoted to organizing the departments of history, pathology and bacteriology in Vanderbilt University, at Nashville, Tenn. He was one of the "big" figures in the recent development of Jefferson College, from which he was graduated in 1886. His writings on the practical work in sanitation have served to attract universal scientific attention to that institution.

As an interne of Jefferson, Doctor Coplin served a year—1886-87—and then practiced medicine nine years. Teaching, department organization at Jefferson, study abroad and practical work on public boards and for medical colleges have occupied the last ten years.

Doctor Coplin was one of the commission of three appointed by Mayor Stuart to organize the Philadelphia Bureau of Bacteriology. His associates were Dr. John Guiteras, now of the University of Havana, and the late Dr. E. O. Shaker. He afterward served on the civil service board that examined applicants for the bureau, resigning when, several years ago, the suggestion was made that appointments did not bear a reasonable relation to the results of the examinations.

President Harrison appointed Doctor Coplin an officer of the United States Marine Hospital and Public Health Service and an inspector of immigrants when cholera was raging in Europe. His work in perfecting a sanitary code for use in large industrial establishments in hot weather has been universally recognized.

Besides his professorship in pathology and bacteriology in Jefferson, Doctor Coplin is pathologist of the Philadelphia hospital, director of the hospital laboratories of Jefferson and pathologist of the Friends' Asylum. He is a fellow of the Philadelphia college of Physicians, a member of the important national, state and city medical societies, of the American Public Health Association, of the Association of American Pathologists and Bacteriologists, of the American Society of Tropical Medicine, a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and president of the Philadelphia Pathological Society.
